The surname Sewall, Sewell, Shewell, Showell, is of ancient English origin. As early as 1376 the coat-of--arms of John Sewall was affixed to a Deed.:Pretty; in chief, a sea whale. The other coat-of- arms used by most of the Sewalls was borne by John de Sewalle, who accompanie Richard the Black Prince into Acquataine: Sable, a chevron between three butterflies, argent. In the arms used by the New England Sewalls we find "gadbees" instead of "butterflies." There is some mystery about these bees in the Seal coat-- of arms. According to Colonel Chester, who carefully investigated this subject, the arms should properly contain butterflies., if it can be proven that the New England Sewalls belong to the heraldic family.

No family has been more prominent in New England history than the Sewalls. Thether the emigrant ancestor, Henry Sewall, who came to Newbury, Mass., in 1635, was of gentle vblood and entitled by descent to the arms-- Sable, a chevron between the three bees argent, which his descendants used in the Colonial days, and in which the bees were replaced by butterflies and adorned the shiled of John de Sewalle, is a question discussed at some length in D.E.Salisbury's "Family Memorials." Whatever may this matter may be decided, it is certain that the Sewalls soon won prominence in the New World. Three of the family became Chief Justices of Mass.; another was as prominent in the Province of Quebec, Canada. Two other Sewalls were Judges of the highest Court of the Commonwealth. In each generation the Sewalls have been among the foremost in the learned professions and in all lines of political and business life. Furthermore, by marriages they have been connected with many of the leading families of America.By female Lines of Descent they can claim as kinsmen a host of distinguished Americans from the poet Longfellow tOpPres ident Cleveland. The most interesting, if not the most famous of the worthies who bore the name of Sewall before the Revolutionary War, was Chief Justice Samuel Sewall of witchcraft times., the "good and wise " of Whittier's lines, who had the courage to rebuke the faults of others, and the still greater courage to confess his own faults.

"His face with lines of firmness wrought,
He bears the look of a man of thought
Who swears to his hurt and changes not,
Yet, touched and softened nevertheless,
With the grace of Christian gentleness.,

Xeroxed 1972

The face that a child might climb to kiss,
True and tender and brave and just,
That men might honor and women trust."

The Diary of Chief Justice Sewall, printed in the Collections of the Mass. Historical Society, is a living picture of the early New England ways of thought, sentiment, and society, and manners. His letter to his son Samuel, dated Apr 21st, 1720, and printed in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, is the corner stone of the Sewall Family History.

The early Sewall History is here arranged according to the suggestions of various members of the family.

(1st generation) William Shewell, or Sewall, the English progenitor of the family, to whom the American lineage is traced, lived at Coventry, Warwickshire, England. Married about 1640 Matilda Horne. The children:

(2nd generation) William Sewall, Jr., the faithful Mayor of Coventry, England. Married Anna Wagstaff.
"There were no male heirs."

(2nd generation) Henry Sewall born Coventry, England, about 1644. "A linen draper by occupation, a prudent man, who acquired a large estate. He served as Alderman of Coventry, 1689 and 1696. In his Will, dated Sept 1st, 1724, he describes himself as of St. Michael's Parish, in the City of Coventry, Alderman, as bequeaths to his wife Margaret all his lands and tenements in the City and country. After his decease certain of these lands and tenements are to be the property of his son Henry. 'And I do bequeathe and devise unto my eldest sonne Henry, upon trust and confidence and as he will answer it before the Lord at the Day of Judgement, that he doe with all humility acknowledge his former offence against his mother, before my Overseers, in her content, and afterwards continue obedient.' He gives certain lands to his youngest son Richard; to his daughters: Anne, wife of Anthony Power, and to his youngest daughter Margaret, the wife of Graham Lendall. He also makes various charitable bequests to Coventry, and appoints his wife executrix. This Will was proved Apr 8th, 1728, and the testator was buried in the Drapers' Chapel of St. Michaelis Church, Coventry, which Church is widely famous for its spire and architecture."

Married Margaret Gresbrooke, one writes it, Nagebrook, born 1670 and died 1728. She was the daughter of Avery, or Avery, Gresbrooke and his wife Margaret Keene of Grafton, Coldfield. Margaret Keene was great niece of John Ferron, one of the earliest Bishops of Exeter, England. Avery Gresbrook was of Hillidltown, Warwick, England. Widow Margaret

Margaret Sewall made her Will May 7th, 1628, bequeathing lands, which were apparently held in her own right, in Wytherly County, Leicester, and at Ansley, County of Warwick. She mentions all of her children, but cuts off the eldest son with 12 pence in money, saying, "And I do forgive unto Henry Sewall, my oldest son, his offence wherein and whereby he hath at sundry times offended me, beseeching Almighty God to give him a heart to deal conciensably with his brothers and sisters, as he would be done unto." This seems to imply that the said Henry had made the apology prescribed by his father and had then received the latter's bequest. Letters of administration on the state of Widow Margaret Sewall were granted Nov 22d, 1628, and she was buried beside her husband in St. Michael's Church. The children:

(3d generation) Henry Sewall, Jr., baptised at Coventry, England. Apr 8, 1576; died Mch., 1657.
M Anne Hunt. Data of the family given below.

(3d generation) Richard Sewall 1577; died 1648.
The Historian of Warwickshire, England.
M Mary Dugdale.

(3d generation) Anne Sewall; married Anthony Power.

(3d generation) Margaret Sewall, married Abraham Randall.

THE RECORDS OF HENRY SEWALL OF THE THIRD GENERATION.

(3d generation) Henry Sewallbaptized in St. Michael's Church, Coventry, England. Apr 8th, 1576; died at Bowley, Mass., Mch., 1657, His grandson, Chief Justice Sewall, wrote of him, "Out of dislike to the English hierarchy he sent over to New England his only son in the year 1634, with neat cattle and provisions suitable for the new Plantation. Mr. Cotton (Rev. John) would have my father settle at Boston, but in regard to his cattle he chose to go to Newbury, whither my Grandfather soon followed him. After ten years at Newbury he removed to Bowley, Mass., where he died. During the latter part of his life he is said to have been slightly deranged." This last mention is evidently the reason of his being two or three times presented by the Grand Jury for various offences, and serves to explain his early difficulties with his mother Margaret.

Married Anne Hunt who was born 1565 and died Jan 20, 1643.

(4th generation) Henry Sewall, the only son of Henry Sewall, and Anne Hunt, b Coventry, England, 1614; d May 16, 1700, aged 86 years. "His people lived at Warwick, Hampshire, Tamworth, Bishop Stoke, Badesley, and other English towns and cities." At 20 years of age he was was sent to New England in the ship Elizabeth and Dorcas, with an outfit of servants and cattle. He spent the first winter at Ipswich, Mass, and in the following Spring, of 1638, settled at Newbury, Mass. Admitted as a Freeman, May 17, 1637, and became a very prominent citizen of Newbury. At his marriage he received from his father 500 acres of land at Coventry, England. 1640-7, he and his wife and her parents returned to England, the climate not being agreeable to the wife's parents Stephen Dummer and wife. They lived in various English cities. After the death of his father Henry Sewall made a third voyage to America to settle the estate. He intended to return to England. He bore a letter from Richard Cromwell, the Lord Protector of England, to the Governor and Magistrates of Mass. In this letter Henry Sewall is described as "The only son and Minister of N., Badesley, County of Southampton, England, and he being personally known to us to be laborious and industrious in the work of the Ministry, and very exemplary for his holy life and good conversation, we do earnestly desire that when he shall have made his addresses to you he may receive all lawful favors and furtherance from you." This letter from Cromwell was dated Mch., 1656.

Notwithstanding Henry Sewall's intention to return to England he always remained in America, and sent for his wife and children to join him at Newbury, Mass. Evidently the return of the Stuarts to Power in England caused Henry Sewall to prefer the American Colony to the old country. He was Deputy to the General Court of Mass., 1661; 1663; 1668; 1670.

Married Nov 25, 1646 Jane Dummer born 1627; died at Newbury, Mass., Jan 12, 1701, aged 74 years. "Through the marriage of Henry Sewall with Jane Dummer, the daughter of Stephen Dummer and Alice Archer, his descendants are allied to Governor William Dummer of Mass., the founder of Dummer Academy and the benefactor of Harvard College; and are also allied with his brother, Jeremiah Dummer, the distinguished scholar and political writer of the Provincial period. These were grandchildren of Richard Dummer, the , the brother of of Stephen Dummer. The English ancestry of the Dummers can be traced in an almost unbroken line to Henry de Domera, who was living in 4700 1107. His son Ralph married Agnes de Las Penne, heriess of Penne, County Somerset, England, afterwards known as Penne--Dummer, and still existing as Pendomer. Their great-grandson, Sir John de Dummer, of 0268-- 1290, has an effigy still to be seen in the Pendomer Church which is a magnificent example of its kind the effigy being seated cross--legged and in a complete suit of ring mail. The family estate in Dummer, Hampshire, England, on the death of Thomas de Dummer, passed through the only daughter, Ellen, who married Sir Nicholas Mite Moro, to their son Thomas, who assumed the name of Dummer., and whose descendants in the direct male line ended in 1693 with a William Dummer, whose arms and memorial inscriptions are still to be seen in brass tablets in the Dummer Church. Some heirs-at in collateral lines had meanwhile married [illegible] Gilbert, or Gilling and Stephen Dummer, the father of Jane Dummer, Henry Sewall's wife, was the great-grandson of Matilda, wife of Richard Zylbrede--Dummer of Oakley and Overton in Hampshire, through her dam [illegible]. [illegible] of Bishop Stoke in Hampshire, England. The English family of Dummer continued to be prominent in Hampshire for several generations."

The children of Henry Sewall and Jane Dummer:

(5th generation) Hannah Sewall b Kenworth, Warwickshire, England, May 10, 1649.
M Aug 24, 1670 Jacob Toppan of Newbury, Mass.

(5th generation) Samuel Sewall b Bishop Stoke, England, Feb 22, 1652 died Jan 1, 1730. He became the famous Chief Justice of Mass. He wrote," I was born at Bishop Stoke, Feb 28, 1652; baptized by Mr. Rashley in Stoke Church, May 4, 1652. Mr. Rashley first preached a sermon and then baptized me. After which an entertainment was made for him and many more. Some months after this my father removed to Badesley where my brother, John Sewall, was born Oct 10, 1654. My father sent for my mother to come to him in New England. I remember being at Bishop Stoke and Badesley, Apr 29d, 1661. The day of the coronation of King Charles the 2nd, the thunder and the lightning of it. Shortly after this my mother went to Winchester with five of small children, Hannah, Samuel, John Stephen and Jane, with John Rash and Mary Ebbs, her servants, there to be in readiness for the full Tagrons. At this place her near relatives, especially my very worthy and pious Uncle, Mr. Stephen Dummer, took leave with tears. Captain Dummer of Southling treated us with Raisins and almonds. My mother lodged in Tump Yard, London, waiting for the going of the ship, the Prudent Mary, Captain Isaac Goodfreen Commander."

Prepared for College at Dummer Academy; in 1776 graduated from Harvard College, began his professional life at Marblehead, Mass., and continued his law practice in the County of Essex, Mass., until he became known as one of the most eminent lawyers of the Bar. For several years he represented Marblehead, Mass., in the Mass. Legislature. From a sketch in the Mass. Law Reports;" In times when moral worth and talents were passports to popular favor he was chosen for a succession of years to represent Marblehead in the Mass. Legislature. There he soon acquired the influence due to his talents. It was a time of innovation and visionary experiment. On more than one occasion, when a learned but eccentric statesman attempted to introduce a popular but dangerous change into the Mass. criminal code, and seemed to carry the multitude along with him, the forcible and unanswerable arguments of Samuel Sewall arrested the course of the experiment, and preserved things in tried and safe channels."

In 1813 he succeeded the Hon. Theophilus Parsons as Chief Justice of this Court. He had served in this office a little more than a year when he was stricken by death while holding Court at Biscasset, Me. A noble monument was erected to his memory at Biscasset, and on its east side is the inscription,' Erected by the members of the Bar practicing in the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth, to express their Veneration of the character of the Hon. Samuel Sewall, late Chief Justice of said Court, who died suddenly at this place, on the 4th of June, 1814, aged 56 years.' On the north side of the monument, 'The remains of Chief Justice Sewall having here interred, afterwards were removed and deposited in the family tomb at Marblehead., Mass.6 "

THE RECORDS OF THE HON. DUMMER SEWALL OF THE 7th GENERATION.

(7th generation) Hon. Dummer Sewall b York, Me., Dec 12 1737 d at Bath, Me., where he had long resided, Apr 5,1812 aged 84 years. Buried with many of his people in the old cemetery at the corner of Beacon and Dummer Streets, Bath, Me. His grave is marked with a 10--foot granite monument. His wife and others buried near him.from a sketch by the descendants." At the age of 19 years Dummer Sewall enlisted in the Provincial Army, and served at the reduction of Louisburg, where he was appointed an Ensign/ On his return he was appointed at Lieutenant and entered to Canada, where he serve served in the army under General Wolfe and under General Amherst until the conquest of the French possessions in Canada, participating in the battles which culminated in the conquest of Quebec, 1759. After his marriage he removed to that part of Georgetown, Me., which was incorporated into the city of Bath, Me., and he always remained there. The date of his removal to that place is given as 1762.n , and he was ever a conspicuous figure and prominent citizen of that town. He built a log house on the eastern side of what is now Front St., Bath, Me., This was opposite the spot where, later on, he built the large and commodious home which is stillstanding. As soon as hostilities were threatened with Great Britain he was selected by the people of his District as one of the Committee of Safety, and he was associated with Brigadier Samuel Thompson in the performance of his duties. He was also a delegate to the Provincial Congress which assembled at Watertown, Mass., and by the council administrating the affairs of the State he was appointed Lt. Colonel of the Regiment commanded by Colonel Samuel Mc Cobb. With this Regiment he marched to Cambridge, Mass., and joined the Continental Army under Washington. He was soon after appointed Muster Master of the District of Maine, the duties of which office he performed during the remainder of the War. He was a Magistrate of Lincoln County, Me., appointed by the first Governor of that State, and continued as such by successive appointments until his death. He was also for many years a special Justice of the Court of Common Pleas for Lincoln County, Me.,.Soon after the adoption of the Constitution of Mass. Colonel Dummer Sewall was elected Senator from Lincoln County, Me., He was a member of the Convention of 1789 which was called by the State to ratify the Constitution of the United States, and was one of the Committee of Compromise appointed at the suggestion of Gen. Hancock towards the close of the session to consider and report such amendments as would make the proposed form of Government more acceptable.Without this the Constitution would not have been ratified by the Convention

He was the first post master at Bath, Me., serving from the establishment of the regular mail until 1806. He was deeply interested in educational matters and was one of the first Overseers of Bowdoin College, and he served as Trustee and Treasurer of that College from 1799 until his resignation in 1806. A godly sincere and religious man, he was one of the founders, and a Deacon, of the Winter St., Congregational Church at Bath, Me. when it was called the 'Old North Church.' Over 300 of his family letters, written in the last 30 years of his life, have been preserved, and give a vivid picture of his own spiritual nature and his keen interest in religious matters. He was noted for his amiable temper, his generous heart, his decision of character, his sound judgement in all practical matters, and for his great helpfulness."

"And it must not be forgotten that he took an active part in the resistance to the British Government which led to the Revolutionary War. His neighbors chose him as a Committee to order away the King's ships which were loading with spars for the King's Navy, and were loading lying at the Harward docks and at the north end of what is now Bath, Me. He worked so effectively that the British were glad to leave."

"He was chosen Parish Clerk 1771--1781. The Parish meetings were held at the home of Jonathan Philbrook until 1769, and after that at Lt. James Springer's tavern, which stood where C.E.Rogers store now is."

Live at Chesterville, Me, until 1862; then to E.Livermore, Me.; schools of Chesterville, Me; contractor and lumberman; he and his wife attend the Universalist Church; an Odd Fellow. "There is no other man who, by individual effort, has done more for the building up of Livermore Falls, Me., than Howard Sewall". His boyhood was passed on the ancestral farm of his grandfather, Dummer Sewall, at Chesterville, Me. Then a very young man, he, with his brother Eugene, in addition to carrying on the farm, purchased a saw-mill, andmanufactured doors, sash and blinds, until 1880. Then Eugene Sewall moved to Livermore Falls, Me., at that time the population of the village was about 600, but, with the foresight that has always actuated the enterprises of these Sewall Brothers, they felt that the probabilities of the future warranted the establishment there of a life-business. They purchased of Deacon Joe Parker 50 acres of pasture land on the south--east outskirts of Livermore Falls, Me., and Eugene Sewall built a fine residence there. In 1882, having sold the ancestral Sewall farm at Chesterville, Me., Mr. Howard Sewall joined his brother Eugene at Livermore Falls, and built the handsome home on Pine Avenue there, which he still occupies. The Sewalls continued their business under the firm name, E.& H. Sewall, carrying a complete stock of moulding, doors, sash, blinds, and dimension lumber of all kinds. This firm was widely known, and noted for the integrity of its dealings, and the business was carried on most successfully until the death of Eugene Sewall in 1906. These Sewall brothers also turned their attention to the 20- acre lot tract of land which they had purchased, laying out streets there, and making other improvements preparatory to building the extension of the village in that direction, which has since been known as Sewallville, a picturesque hillside now covered with attractive and well-kept dwellings. Up to 1906 24 tenement houses, some single and some double, had been erected in Sewallville, and the owners had made it a point to keep it one of the highest class neighborhoods in the town, several of the tenants having occupied their homes for many years. Land was also purchased in the northern part of Livermore Falls Village, and three houses were built on Green Street and four on Knapp Street, which, with the family residences, make a total of 24 homes built by the Sewalls. Since the death of his brother Eugene, Mr. Howard Sewall has retired from active business and gives his attention to the care of his real estate. He is a man typical of the best old New England stock, shrewd, keen, keen to legitimate business interests, but no believer in the modern get--rich--quick without scheme, genial and quick-witted, he possesses a quaint humor that makes him a very interesting conversationalist, and he is brisk and happy. He is an influential member of the Universalist Church, and active in the educational and industrial interests of the community, but says that he has never had time to fool with political rings, and it is one of the best satisfactions of his life that he was never 'run for office' of any kind."

Graduated from Bath high school 1875; entered Yale College . but the sudden death of his father by an accident in N.Y.City while he was on a Dixed business trip there, changed his plans and he left College to take a position in San Francisco, California, with the shipping firm of Williams, Dimond & Co. His success with this firm was a marked one. He had a wonderful business talent. He was of handsome physical appearance , with charming address, with an unusually acute business mind. He had marvellous energy, and advanced rapidly until he became a member of the firm. A dozen years before his death he went East to become manager of his California Company on the Atlantic side of the continent , with a office in the Vallot. St. District of N.Y.City, while his home was at Englewood, N.J. This firm is known as one of the largest in America, especially in its dealings along the Pacific Coast. Mr. Sewal amassed a very large fortune; he had a beautiful home , a charming family. His wife was a San Francisco lady. (10th generation) Ron Arthur Sewall b Bath, Me., Nov 23, 1875 d Sept 5, 1900. "While still in his teens he was engaged in the purchase of ship timber at Prince Edward's Island. In 1854 he formed a partnership with his brother, Edward Sewall, under the firm name, Arthur & E. Sewall, in 1855 these brothers launched their first ship, the Holyhead, of over 1,000 tons. It was a large vessel for those days. Every year after that, on an average, a ship was built by this firm, generally of larger tonnage than the first one. On the death of the brother , 1879 the firm name became Arthur Sewall & Co., his nephews, Samuel S. Sewall and his son, Th. D. Sewall, becoming partners. The work was thus carried on with great activity. In 1882 Israel and Benjamin Harrison walked along the Bath of the ship they were building, the Kapahanock, of over 3,000 tons burden, which, at her launching, was the largest ship afloat. Mr. Sewall reminded President Harrison that, in the Presidency of the elder Harrison, his father, had built another Kapahanock which was also the largest ship of her day. The record of building the largest ships remained with the Sewalls for several years afterwards. In 1893 Mr. Sewall went to England and Scotland, visiting the noted shipyards there, and studied the different lines of progress in marine construction. He returned to his shipyard at Bath, Me., to equip it with a complete outfit for the construction of steel sailing vessels. His first steel ship bore the name appropriate [illegible] of Bath. [illegible] in his [illegible] of a builder of ships that Mr. Sewall took the greatest pride. To him the product of shipyard was a matter of great joy and satisfaction. He watched every part of the construction of each vessel, and there was no part of the work that he was not manually capable of performing. His relations with his employees was always most cordial, most of his workmen being his fellow townsmen, and rejoiced in his talented leadership.

He took equal pride in his work after each ship had sailed out of the still waters of the Kennebec River, and began to make a records for herself on the high seas. Almost all of the Sewall ships were officered from the banks of the Kennebec River, with a preference given to the sons of Bath, Me. For many years there was no more promising field for a young man to adopt. The best blood of Maine had probably walked the quarter--deck of Bath--built ships, and it is hardly extravagant to say that at least every family on the River had contributed one son to the service of the merchant marine. The Sewall wooden ships have always borne a high reputation, although, being wooden ships, English discrimination in Lloyds operated somewhat to their detriment. They have not always been profitable investments, but Mr. Sewall continued to add steadily to his fleet long after others became discouraged by the poor returns from such shipping. He never lost faith that ultimately the United States would regain our prominence and power on the high seas, and he always favored the enactment of measures designed to enable it to do so, not regarding American ships in the light of an ordinary private industry seeking protection, but as a national industry, which national pride and patriotism should put into a position of profitably carrying the Stars and Stripes into all ports of the world. He was an intense American. In the times of war nothing would induce him to disguise or prepare his ships against possible capture, and the Stars and Stripes and the flag of the Sewalls continued to fly from his vessels during the Civil War. The Vigilant, one of his best ships, was captured by the Confederate gunboat Sumter, when she was but fairly out upon the high seas. Mr. Sewall would gladly have devoted his entire time to the building of ships, but his ability as a man of affairs caused him to be drifted into other lines of activity. For 9 years he was President of the Me. Central railroad before it was merged with the Boston and Maine road. He also served for many years as President of the Bath, Me., National Bank. His executive capacity and his business judgment, rather than his wealth, caused him to be sought for for many corporate positions.. He always took a lively interest in the political affairs of the country. He was a Democrat from conviction and in this conviction he never wavered. This of course closed him to all avenues of political advancement in Mo. The highest, and only , elective offices that he held were those of Councilman, and Alderman of Mexico, Mo.,Within his party he occupied a position of enviable influence.He was delegate to the National Conventions of 1872 , 1880, and 1884. In 1888 and 1892 he was chosen a member of the National Democratic Committee., and served on the Executive Committee during each campaign.His Democracy was virile and robust, but at times it almost seemed overshadowed by his intense Americanism. With regard to the tariff, he would have used it so far as it was necessary to raise revenue, as a weapon against othe other nations--- a weapon of defense to our industries, and of action to force from other nations a return for every undue concession which we make to them.To this extent he sympathized with the reciprocity measure of Secretary Blaine., and he was a believer in discriminating duties in favor of partisan tenets as advocated by Jefferson. He was the advocate of a vigorous foreign policy. He would deal with Canada so as to force her to realize her disadvantage as a British dependency. He favored the annexation of Hawaii; the maintenance of our influence in Samoa; and the independence of Cuba.He was an ardent and outspoken champion of bimetalism. His firm and early avowal of what was, and is his associates, a very unpopular doctrine brought him into national prominence. In 1896 to the sur rise of the country and himself, he was nominated by the Democratic party as a candidate for Vice President.On accepting this nomination at the Madison Gardens, N.Y. City, Aug, 1896,, he said,' The Democracy of this country reclaimes that all the great principles of our party are as potent and essential to the well-being of the country to-day as they have always been, and as they ever would be,but the overshadowing issues of the country now, made dominant by the distressed condition prevailing throught the land, is a demand for reform in our existing monetary system, Our party, and, we believe, a great majority of the American people, are convinced that the legislation of 1873 demonetizing silver was a wrong inflicted upon our country which should and must be righted. We believe that the single gold standard has so narrowed the base of our monetary structure that it is unstable and unsafe, and so dwarfed in its development and in it position to furnish the necessary financial blood of the nation, that commercial and industrious paralysis has followed. We believe, that we need, and must have, the broad gold and silver foundation to support a monetary system strong and stable and capable of meeting the demand of the great and growing country and an industrious and enterprizing people.A principle that will not be weakened by every foreign draft upon us, a system that willprotect us from the frequent fluctuations so distressing to every business industry of the land.We demand the utilizing of silver, the opening of our mints; the return to the money of our fathers, the money of the Constitution, gold and silver. We believe this is the remedy, and the only remedy, for the evil that is now so fast devastating our and impoverishing our land and the people, bringing poverty to our homes, and bankruptcy to our business, which, if allowed to continue, will grow until our very institutions are threatened. The demonitization of silver has thrown the whole primary money function on gold, appreciating its value and purchasing power. Restore the money function to silver and silver will appreciate and its producing power increase. Take from gold its monopoly, its value will be reduced and in due course the parity of our two metals will again obtain under natural causes. We shall then have a broad and unlimited foundation for the monetary system with our country's needs, and future development, not the unsafe basis of to-day, reduced by half by the removal of silver, and continually undermined by foreigners carrying from us our gold.' After his effort for the Vice Presidency Mr. Sewall continued actively in business and travelled extensively. In 1896 and 1897 he went over the route of the Panama Canal, and then, although it was generally conceded that the proper route for the Inter-oceanic Canal was by the way of Nicaragua, with his characteristic firmness he maintained that it should be by the way of the Isthmus of Panama, a position which was vindicated. He was a sincerely religious man and a prominent member of the New Jerusalem Church of Bath, Me., over which the Rev. Samuel Sike, D.D., was the Pastor for half a century. To this venerable man, by whom he was baptized and married, he bore a deep affection, and one of the many generous deeds unostentatiously done by him was the provision for a year of foreign travel for this scholarly gentleman and wife, the one case of his guardianship. Mr. Sewall died in his summer home at Sewall Point, Me."

Hon. Arthur Sewall married Emma Duncan Crocker; the daughter of Charles Crocker and Rachel Sewall of Bath, Me., her line of descent was through John Sewall of the 4th generation; by his son Samuel Sewall; by his grandson, Jerry Sewall, and by his great-grandson, James Sewall, to James Sewall the father of Rachel Sewall.

Entered Consular service as a Democrat, being appointed Vice Consul to Liverpool and Consul General at Tarsus in 1887 by President Cleveland. Finding himself unable to agree with the President's policy in the Pacific he resigned his post and returned to America. Under President Harrison he was attached to the Commission which negotiated the Berlin Treaty of 1889, for the joint government of Samoa by the Powers. Re-appointed Consul General to Batum in 1889 and secured the site for the site of the Naval Station of Pago--Pago. He was admitted to the Maine Bar in 1892. He presided over the National Republican Convention and was a delegate to the National Republican Convention of 1896. In 1896 he was chosen to the Maine Legislature as Representative. In 1897 appointed American Minister to Hawaii, and in 1898 he personally received the transfer of the Sovereignty of the Hawaiian Islands. He remained there as a Special Agent of the U.S. until the organization of the Territory was completed and served as its first member of the National Republican Committee. Returning to Bath, Me., he was chosen Representative to the Me. Legislature 1904--1906, and for the Maine Senate 1907--1908. He was Chairman of the Maine Committee on Public Safety during the World War. In 1920 he was elected a member of the Republican National Committee from Maine. His home at Bath, Me., is an old Colonial mansion which was purchased of a descendant of an old Bath family. His summer home is at Small Point, Me., and looks out upon the broad ocean. On the walls of this cottage are working models of vessels and some figure heads which once decorated sailing vessels. The colonial home at Bath, Me., has almost innumerable curios from many parts of the world; models of ships, and pictures and articles of deep historical interest.

THE RECORDS OF REV. SAMUEL SEWALL OF THE 8th GENERATION.

(8th generation) Rev. Samuel Sewall b Dec 21, 1754; d entre the Isles of Shoals, N.H., Aug 10, 1846. A faithful and noble Congregational Pioneer Missionary. In 1786 he settled on Alden's Stream, on the southern boundary line between Farmington and Chesterville, Me. In 1788, after he had erected mills there, a Congregational Church was formed in that neighborhood and he became a faithful member of it. In 1800 he was licensed to preach and began his labors in "the weird, destitute settlements of Eastern and Northern Maine." He labored incessantly, and led many people to a Christian life. He was ordained Pastor over the Edgecomb, Me., Congregational Church in 1807.

(9th) Levi Sewall b May 24, 1800; d at Island Falls, Me., Dec 4m 1870. He lived for a time at Phippsburg, Me, and removed to Island Falls, Me., July 3, 1842; having a farm there half a mile long on the River and a mile back from that River. It contained 320 acres. He bought this land from parties in Mass , at 1[illegible] dollars per acre. At that time much of the land was bought of Maine and paid for by work on the roads. This Sewall land, having been bought from Mass. owners was paid for in cash. A man of sturdy qualities.
M Sept 12, 1824 Rebekah Alexander b Harpswell, Me., Jan 28, 1801 d at Island Falls, Me., Oct 8, 1891; the 6th child of David Alexander of Harpswell, Me. A woman of superior mind and noble qualities; in her extreme old age her mind was clear and bright, and her step light and youthful. Theodore Roosevelt, who spent many months in her hospitable home, said th t she was one of the most wonderful women that he had ever met.
The children:

(10th generation) David Alexander Sewall b Phippsburgh, Me., July 10, 1828; d Apr 12, 1906, at Island Falls, Me., where he had long resided. Obituary." He died after an illness of several weeks . Removed to Island Falls, Me., with his parents. He was prominent in business and political matters in his town and in Aroostook County, Me., For many years he was a well--known lumberman, and no man was better acquainted than he with the rivers and waters in that part of Me., In the old days, when many million feet of logs were driven down the East branch of the Mattawamkeag River, crossing Mattawamkeag Lake by primitive 'headworks,' towing large booms, his services were always in demand to take charge of all this work. In 1874 he was elected one of the Aroostook County Commissioners and served a full term. In those days his was not an easy task to traverse the length of that long County. But he tramped tramped over a large part of it while performing those dubious duties. When the Plantation of Island Falls, Me., was organized in 1858 he was elected its first Assessor, and he was four time re-elected to that office befor the incorporation of the town in 1872. After that he served on the Board of Selectmen for 14 years. He was a member of the Island Falls, Me., Masonic Lodge, No., 206, having gotten a demit from Mahadin Kahtadin Lodge No 98 of Patten, Me., which he had joined shortly after its organization. He had also been a member of Aroostook Chapter, No., 8, for many years. He was always a sturdy Republican, and was very active at all of the Conventions of his party."

(10th) Rev. Dr. John Smith Sewall b Newcastle, Me., Mch 20, 1830 d at Bangor, Me., Oct 11, 1903. " He visited Japan as a member of Commodore Perry's Expedition, and then graduated from Bangor, Me., Theological Seminary in 1858. He was Chaplain of the 8th Mass. Regiment in the Civil War. Professor of Rhetoric, Oratory and English Literature at Bangor, Me., Theological Seminary, 1871--1907. After that Professor Emeritus, and engaged in literary work. Member of Hannibal Hamlin G.A.R. Post Bangor, Me., and Chaplain of the Maine Commandery of the Loyal Legion. Graduated from Bowdoin College in 1850 and was given his D.D.degree in 1879; he had been a Trustee of Bowdoin College since 1885. That he was a member of the Perry Expedition to Japan has proven valuable to merican history, for, being a man of education, and of ability and talent as a narrator and historian, he not only contributed an accurate and graphic account of the expedition from personal observation, but collected all possible data. For about 500 times he lectured upon this Expedition. He was the author of 'The Log of the Captain's Clerk,' giving the story of the Japan Expedition in a delightful narrative form. Mr. Sewall always said that poverty was the cause of putting him in the way of being an active participant in one of the most notable events of merican history. When he graduated from Bowdoin College he had not much to show for his four years of hard work but a sheepskin and a debt that held him with a grip throttling ambitions until that debt could be wiped out. Casting about for something, or some way, to earn ready money, he stumbled upon an opening as Captain's Clerk on the U.S. Sloop--of--War Saratoga, fitting out for the Asiatic Station. It was a far cry from the future career that he had dreamed about, this rather humdrum and humble position on a ship of the Navy. But there was always something of interest after the fleet had reached the Eastern Station, and out in time chasing pirates, dodging typhoons, and keeping track of uncharted reefs. But one day there came orders which must have caused a sensation similar to that which electrified Dewey's men when they were ordered to Manilla. Commodore Perry was ordered to Japan, to the unknown ports of the Land of the Dragon, to convey the kind regards of the U.S. of America, and request that Japan 'loosen up', and get into the commercial game with the Yankee Republic. It was considered a rather nervy thing to do. The result of that expedition is now history. Throughout his life Mr. Sewall was a noble and helpful son of Maine."
